

MAY

GOOD

Life

Pretty up your potting shed with stylish new gardening gear, p. 26.

Wanted

Sketch Art

Writing utensil or objet d'art? You could argue it either way—these graphite sculptures by Agelio Batle are displayed under glass at Artifacts in Broad Ripple, but the entire surface can write. Batle first cast his own fist in 1999 to create a poetic metaphor (“it’s not the pencil that draws; it’s the hand”). He repeated it with the hand of a child, resulting in the items sold today. Batle’s other pieces include a quill, a fish, and even a human heart—in miniature, and no donor involved. $64. 6327 Guilford Ave.,

317-255-1178, artifactsindy.com — MEGAN STEPHENS